The federal government has retreated from investigating and prosecuting environmental crimes. States haven't filled the gap. This lecture will discuss why you should care, and what can be done.

Steve Solow is the founder and inaugural Director of the Institute for Environmental Enforcement (IEE) at Elisabeth Haub School of Law at Pace University. A former Chief of the Environmental Crimes Section at the U.S. Department of Justice, he led major environmental enforcement initiatives nationwide. He has served as an environmental law professor, federal compliance monitor, and leader of a national environmental practice group. Mr. Solow is currently Principal of Solow, PLLC and a Senior Fellow at NYU School of Law and The Wharton School.
